Seaside Post & News-Sentinel Is Under New Management

Attorney Thomas L. Berkley, President of The Alameda Publishing Corporation, Oakland, announced the purchasing of the Monterey Publishing Corporation, publishers of the Seaside Post & News-Sentinel.

In his announcement, Attorney Berkley cited the following changes in personnel for the Seaside Post & News-Sentinel:

Thomas Nash, veteran newspaperman, was appointed Manager/Editor. Clintel Porter, Assistant Manager and Advertising Manager.

Rosalie DiMaggio, Advertising Sales.

Patricia Magee Rogers, Classified Advertising.

Mr. Nash, a graduate of Langston University, Oklahoma, has been a newspaperman in the Bay Area for over 20 years. He started with Mr. Berkley on May 5, 1963 as an advertising salesman and advanced to managing editor to General Manager of The POST. This publication grew into five papers under his administration. (The Oakland POST, Richmond POST, Berkeley POST, San Francisco POST and

"It shall be the policy of the Seaside POST News-Sentinel to keep the community informed of all matters pertaining our community," Nash said.

Announces Campaign Reform Bill

In an effort to curb the excessive influence of big-moneyed power-brokers in political campaigns, Rep. Glenn Anderson (D-Calif.) has introduced legislation in Congress to prohibit large contributions to political candidates, and to permit the partial financing of Federal campaigns by tax dollars.

The slush funds, the suitcases stuffed with cash, the laundered money flowing from Mexico, and the backdoor big money deals must be halted, and faith in the integrity of the electoral process must be restored," Anderson said.

The Watergate scandal points to the need for reform, and it issues a real challenge to our system of government. In order to revive the public's faith in our political institutions, drastic reform of the campaign financing system is necessary," he continued.

The current system, which encourages enormous expenditures of money, has led to an arrangement that "has tempted too many, with too much, with too little accountability," according to Anderson.

The former Lieutenant Governor's proposal has four major features designed to clean up the campaign system.

First, it would establish a bi-partisan Federal Elections Commission with complete investigative and prosecuting authority. Currently, the Attorney General, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and the General Accounting Office have shared responsibility for this function. The Commission would be composed of six members -- three Democrats and three Republicans -- appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and the President. The members would be chosen by "reason of maturity, experience, and public service who have attained a nationwide reputation for integrity, impartiality, and good judgement."

Rather than permit officials to police their own

NEWS

SSG R. Cardwell
ARMY RECRUITER

Hi everyone.

Mention the word inflation and take note of people's reactions. Invariably, women will begin by citing the "outrageous" amounts they are charged for meat. Meat is a high commodity item in America and becoming more so all the time. It is big business—a business that has developed into a multifaceted industry managed and directed by shrewd professionals. These men supervise the meat process from the cattle ranches in Texas to the meat packing warehouses of Chicago where cattle are prepared for packing and shipping to retail outlets throughout the country. The decisions and judgments of these men determine, to a large extent, the cost of the meat by the time it reaches the dining room table. It is this group of men that women across the country dream of branding with a scalding hot iron every time they inspect the latest supply of Chicago beef at their local outlets. But very few know of the size and strength of the unions these men must contend with. Many members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters of America, for instance, averages over $10,000 annually. And wages seem constantly to be going up.

Fact is, the meat cutting profession is one many young people find attractive. Aside from good wages and a full complement of benefits, it provides the ambitious young person with a good insight into the total process of the operation.

The opportunities for young persons, once they are established, are unlimited. It's getting established in the business that is the tricky part. TODAY'S ARMY can alleviate the tricky part for them. Basically, a meat cutter in TODAY'S ARMY performs virtually the same services he would be required to perform in civilian life, namely trimming, cutting, boning and grinding meat, distinguishing types and grades of meat and then ordering a supply sufficient enough to last a specified length of time. When he or she demonstrates responsibility, they may be charged with supervising the overall meat processing operation.

Though this position depends on openings, any young person with aptitude, proper motivation and training will be able to enjoy an Army job in this field.

TODAY'S ARMY has over 300 jobs for you to choose from, so if you are interested in any job training, come by our office located at 431 Webster St., Monterey, or call 372-4742/372-0553.

Recipes

to conserve gas & electricity.
(And lower your PG&E bill.)

Timer

Cook by timer and temperature. You'll get better results and conserve fuel. Don't peek while you're cooking. This wastes heat and money.

Oven

Don't pre-heat it for foods that take over an hour to cook. Turn it off as soon as you're through using it. Don't use it to heat your kitchen.

Pans and lids

Match size of pans to size of cooking unit or flame so you don't waste heat. Reduce flame if it licks around sides of pan. It takes less heat to cook if pans are covered with tight-fitting lids.

Measuring cups

Use only 2-4 tablespoons of water to cook frozen vegetables. For fresh vegetables, use only 1/4-1/2 cup of water per pound. (Small amounts of water heat faster.)

Burners

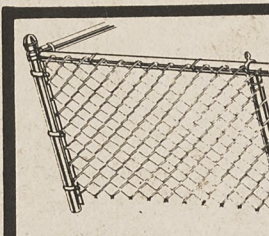

Use high heat only to bring water to a boil, then reduce heat to simmer. On electric ranges, turn burner off before food is done; retained heat will complete the cooking. These tips may seem like little things, but they all add up to savings on your PG&E bill. Of course they'll help conserve gas and electricity too.

Monterey Peninsula Seaside — After Dark — By Tom Nash

Saturday is my normal day to work on my column, and Saturday morning I was strung out developing my big story when City Councilman Stephen Ross came into the office and reminded me of the big event taking place at that moment. The event was the Soapbox Derby beginning on LaSalle Street, which was sponsored by the Young Adults for Action, for kids from 7 years to 14.

Armed with tape recorder and 25 pencils, I charged out the door, jumped into the van and took off like a jet for the activity. Arriving at the top of the hill, I almost got a ticket for "reckless parking", but I talked Seaside's finest out of this issuance, when I informed them that I was rushing to be on the scene to see Mayor B. J. Dolan take the first car down the 45 degree decline. Stating that they didn't know the Mayor could drive, they let me through.

I found Mayor Dolan and Councilman Ross in a heated debate as to whom the privilege of taking the first car down should go to. Councilman Ross was insisting that the Mayor take the first trip down and he go after all the other contestants, and the Mayor was insisting that Councilman Ross go first. There were three ambulances following Councilman Ross and the Mayor around, and one of the ambulance drivers was overhead to remark that Councilman Ross "got out of breath threading a needle", this was why they had brought along three extra containers of oxygen and had alerted Ft. Ord to be on stand-by if their help was needed.

The debate ended in a compromise, however, when it was decided to contact Lou Haddad and let him have the honor while the Mayor and Councilman Ross walk down the hill to the finish line.

In the meantime, old evil Willie Adams, bartender at The Fireside, was over threatening a seven-year-old with a pick-ax handle because the kid wouldn't let Willie take his red car down the hill. The kid finally got tired of being threatened and punched Willie in the eye. That ended the discussion. (Willie couldn't have gotten in the car if the kid had permitted him to, for his belly wouldn't fit.)

There were 32 entrants, one was a young lady, Nancy Reginald, who walked away with a mini-bike as the second place winner. She defeated 30 boys. I learned that this was the fourth annual Soap Box Derby sponsored by the Young Adults for Action, and the enthusiasm expressed by the kids was overwhelming. The City of Seaside owes a debt of gratitude to this outstanding group for the efforts on their part in behalf of the future men and women of Seaside.

Mayor Dolan suggested we contact Ed Fischer, vice president and manager of the Seaside Branch, to act as the chief flagman. (The Chief Flagman stands out in front of the cars with a red flag and waves it back and forth to start the race), but it was concluded that Ed might have some difficulty in getting out of the way of the youngsters. We later found out that Ed was out of town and wouldn't be back for about three weeks.

To say the least every one had a boss time at the activity, and there were no serious injuries to any of the contestants. The only injury of major proportions was to my feet from trying to get a statement from the winner of each heap.

By this time I was starved and decided to stop by the "Egg Hut" Restaurant for a snack. Naturally, the first person I ran into was Elizabeth, a waitress there. The only reason that I am mentioning Elizabeth is because of her attitude towards me. She is the only waitress in town who gives me what ever she thinks I should have, regardless of whether I have ordered it or not, and I have to eat it or "get out of town". If I get water with my meal, she informs me to say 10 Hail Marys for her generosity.

One of her customers, Bert Martin, a retired army man, came in and greeted her with: "Hi, you're looking good today, who is your undertaker?" Needless to say, he didn't get any service. He only wanted coffee, and his bill was twice the size of mine. However, I have found she is one of the friendliest waitresses in Seaside.

I stopped in at Flora's on Cannery Row. It is a part of the Warehouse, where I found Mace Franklin on the Piano Bar. Mace was playing songs that date back to the old Jimmy Lunceford days. We entered a discussion and he knew many of my acquaintances in the Bay Area, which included Earl Fatha Hines, Sam Landers, Junius Courtney, Ed Bell and a host of others. After a few repasses, we started a songfest that soon had us quite a listening audience. Most of whom thought it would be a very good idea if I returned to the Bay Area. Mace and his lovely wife were the life of the party. He appears every night with the exception of Sundays. Your request is his greatest demand. For a full evening of entertainment, I recommend a visit with Mace Franklin at Flora's in the Warehouse.

CAN PROPERTY TAXES BE LOWERED?
By Lou Haddad

The announcement that the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District may drop the tax rate $1.71 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation deserves honorable mention. Funds made available by state and federal governments have contributed to a relaxation of the burden on local taxes, and the Board members should be commended for taking appropriate action. Of course this depends on whether or not Governor Reagan signs AB 1287.

School taxes have always taken a large bite of the tax rate, and apparently the Board is cognizant of this. Education continues to be expensive, with which all parents will agree, and probably not gripe too much at this expense.

Now if local levels of government who are responsible for portions of the tax rate would follow the lead for the MPUSD, the aims and objectives of Federal revenue sharing would be achieved. The main purpose of these funds is to lessen the property tax burden. It stands to reason that is a local entity of government receives over $150,000 of federal aid, the local tax bite should be decreased by the same amount.

One cent on the tax rate generates $3200 in Seaside. $.47 brings in a fraction over $150,000. Also, $.47 is about one-fourth or 25 percent of Seaside's $1.95 tax rate per hundred dollars of assessed valuation. Could taxes be dropped 25 percent?

Everybody is aware that the cost of government continues to escalate. Some governments more than others, depending upon the elected officials and their ability to understand how much a tax dollar is worth and how far it should stretch. Seaside is no different. If revenue sharing was the only source of extra funds, we might say no to a 25 percent decrease. But other revenues are increasing too. The Seaside City Council recently raised the business licenses in Seaside. Sales tax continues to increase. But more important than any of these, THE COUNTY ASSESSOR RAISED ASSESSED VALUES BETWEEN 12 AND 25 PERCENT.

How does that effect Seaside? The assessed valuation was $27 million. Now it is $32 million, an increase of $5 million. A great portion of that is a direct result of the County Assessors action. Some of it is the normal growth caused by increased development in the residential and business sections.

Nevertheless, a $5 million increase in assessed valuation will provide the city treasury with close to $100,000 increase. At the city's tax rate of $1.95, this amounts to $.30 of that. Simple arithmetic adds $.47 (revenue sharing windfall) and $.30 (assessed valuation increase) equals $.77. Subtract this $.77 from the city's present tax rate of $1.95 we arrive at the $1.18 figure. This is what Seaside's tax rate could be if the costs of government remained the same.

But it doesn't. Yet there is no excuse for the tax rate being any higher than say, $1.50. This would benefit many low-income homeowners and older Americans on fixed incomes. A $.45 drop in Seaside tax rate, hopefully paralleling the $.71 projected decrease in the MPUSD tax rate, with a wishful decrease of some $.25 by the Board of Supervisors would mean about $150 savings per year for a homeowner whose home is valued at $25,000. That'll buy several pairs of shoes for the kiddies.

And the County government receives some 7 million in revenue sharing funds. What action will the Board of Supervisors take to lessen the tax burden?

Your Mayor Reports

Joe Dolan
SEASIDE'S YOUTH

We've congratulated both Miss Regina Battle and Miss JoAnn Ford for their accomplishments in winning MISS BLACK TEENAGE CALIFORNIA in 1972 and 1973 respectively! And our best wishes go with JoAnn Ford in the national contest next week.

Seaside is a unique Brotherhood City and these words are as true as they are descriptive. Last week we complimented the Seaside Youth Council plus the students from Martin Luther King Jr. High School for their Herculean efforts in preparing the Independence Day Parade floats. Thomas ANTANG, a 14-year-old Martin Luther King student, prepared an "after action report," which is quoted in its entirety and deserves to be shared by all of us.

"July 8, 1973
Dear Mayor Dolan,

I hope you will like this progress report on our float. We students took pride in building this float and it was a great experience for us. As we look back into the beginning of this worthwhile project, the Human Relations Team as they say, "Chalks up another one for progress." "It's a dream come true," I replied, after an okay signal was given to progress into the construction of our float. Immediately, plans were being made and a suitable theme was being thought up. We thought of no better way than to emphasize our schools' Human Relations Team and their valuable help and guidance in which they have managed on this campus. This active organization, headed by Mrs. Johnson, thought the best way we could introduce our school to the community was to use an international type of theme. This was how "Unity Through Human Relations" got to be our theme for 1973. Through the ideas of the many talented students at King, they molded their ideas into a float that looked like it was adult-made, even though it was mostly made by us students. Operations in the "think" stage of our float took one month to complete. This month was February.

After that, our next step was to get hold some funds to get us going. We thought of many ideas from the traditional car washes to our successful Faculty Variety Show. Fortunately, through the "King" spirit present in every teacher, they put on the best show in the MPUSD. Through this variety show, the team raised a record amount of $350 for our float. With this money, there was no need for any other fund raising activities because this was over the needed amount.

In late March, we started purchasing employment for elderly persons who need to supplement their income, and loving attention for a child who is handicapped or in a correctional institution. Mrs. Aline Lopez, our Monterey County Supervisor, joins me in conveying our appreciation to Mr. Clint Porter for his interest and courtesy. We feel you have a very fine newspaper and we have enjoyed reading it. Our best wishes for your future success.

Sincerely,
Lillie Bouriaque, Director

Lenses That Darken in the Sun

by James R. Gregg, O.D.

(Dr. Gregg is professor of optometry at the Southern California College of Optometry, Fullerton, and also a noted author and lecturer. He has been a trustee and is a past president of the California Optometric Association.)

When those amazing photochromic sunglasses burst on the scene several years ago, a lot of people were skeptical. "Lenses that darken in the sun," my first patient exclaimed. "You've got to be kidding."

Today the sun-sensor lenses are accepted as commonplace. Nearly everyone asks, "Say, what about those lenses that get dark outdoors? What would they do for me?"

To answer that question, let's examine the two types of light-sensitive lenses that are presently available—the photogray and the photosun.

The photogray in its lightest phase absorbs about 15 per cent of the light. It is, therefore, much darker than an ordinary lens and twice as dark as the very light tints often prescribed for general wear. Dark tint lenses should not be used for night driving or in especially dim environments.

The photogray is not a true sun lens, since its absorptive power is only 55 per cent at maximum exposure, 2/3 the power of ordinary sunglasses. Many people, however, have expressed satisfaction with this lens, since it minimizes the need for changing glasses as brightness varies. At the beach, in the desert, or for long exposure to bright light, you'd better have a pair of dark sunglasses as well.

The photosun lens, on the other hand, has a minimum absorption rate of 35 per cent that goes to about 80 per cent in its darkest phase. This lens is much too dark indoors or at night, since it qualifies as a true sun lens. Outdoors, its adjustability is a big asset. It can be made in prescription. Indoors and at night, clear or lightly tinted lenses would be advisable.

It should be noted that the chemical change causing both types of lenses to darken depends primarily upon the amount of ultraviolet present. In the open, there is plenty of ultraviolet, so the lenses darken beautifully. But sheltered from ultraviolet the lens returns to its lightest tint. Short ultraviolet wavelengths are largely absorbed by ordinary glass, lessening the effectiveness of the photosun lens in automobiles and boat cabins.

The chemical action in sun-sensor lenses is not fatigable and will work forever. However, the process does take a few minutes and at first the lenses are a little light or dark for perfect brightness control.

Scientists are laboring to produce a variable density lens that will incorporate the best qualities of the photogray and photosun, a lens that can cope with the full range of brightness the human eye must face. I expect it will happen.

As I See It

BY MEL VERCOE

A woman for President? Why not? If we are really and truly looking for someone we can trust and communicate with, then the idea is not at all far-fetched. Granted, that a woman might not be as sharp politically, but she would more than offset that by her in-born natural desire to make herself heard, a quality notably lacking in the largely all-male cast now under investigation by the Senate Watergate Committee. Many people in America were disappointed that Martha Mitchell did not sit behind John during his two and a half days of testimony. Some were disappointed because they could hardly wait until she jumped up at some crucial moment with something like, "Tell 'em John. Quit taking the blame. Think of our future, John." But Martha was not there, and maybe we'll never know what John might have said with her encouragement.

So, many were disappointed that some very important information may have been withheld from the American public. But, seriously, can you picture a woman invoking a supposedly legal technicality like "separation of powers" in order to remain silent on any issue at all, particularly an issue as important as the Watergate materials such as wood, wheat paste, paint, shellac, and the all important float decorating materials. When these materials arrived, everybody started pitching in and started doing such things as making a paper mache globe, building frames, and constructing all the necessary props for our float. Gradually the props were beginning to take shape and finally were ready to be put together.

Through the generosity of the Filipino-American Community Club of the Monterey Peninsula and the Monterey Peninsula and the assistance from Councilman Glenn Olea, we at King, were very fortunate to get the club's float trailer. One week before the parade we borrowed the trailer and started to put our float together. It was a once-in-a-lifetime project for us kids that we probably wouldn't get to do again, so we put it together with a little extra care. One day before the parade, we started decorating our float. It took six hours to complete starting at 6 a.m. After its completion, it was towed down to Wester Volkswagen in the Gateway Auto Center where their generous offer to shelter our float was accepted.

Upon completing the float, we students had a strong feeling that we could conquer the hard task of building a beautiful float worthy of our cause. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Thomas Antang

planning and cover-up? Why women don't get more involved in politics is likely because they don't inspire confidence in voters, but now that Watergate has destroyed virtually all of the confidence voters had in politicians in general there should be a change. The choice is fairly clear. Go on as we have toward certain destruction, or give women a chance. They couldn't possibly do worse.

Government Sued For Sterilizing Girls

nodding agreement from time to time, Relf told how a worker for the Montgomery Family Planning Clinic took his girls to the hospital for what they were told would be shots.

Only the next day did he learn that his girls had been rendered sterile.

And what was your reaction? Senator Kennedy asked.

"It just got all over me," Relf said, rubbing his head in agitation.

"It made you angry," Yeah. I didn't want it done and I'm still upset," he replied, adding that the family had never returned and had no intention of returning to the clinic.

The clinic insists that the operation was preformed after it had been explained to the mother, an illiterate, and she placed her "X" on a consent form for each of the girls. The question of informed consent is a central question in the lawsuit now pending. The family is suing the federal government because of the operation.

WHITE HOUSE SUPPRESSION CHARGE

A former federal family planning official testified that the girls were sterilized because of the absence of federal guidelines he said were "suppressed" by the White House.

Warren M. Hern, resigned chief program developer for family planning in the Office of Economic Opportunity, testified before the Senate health subcommittee.

Hern told the subcommittee that the sterilization might never have occurred if the White House had not withheld guidelines he had developed.

When 25,000 copies were readied on Feb. 2, 1972, distribution was ordered delayed and "to my knowledge they were never sent out," Hern said. The guidelines stressed the need of "knowing consent" of patients, he said.

Dr. Leon Cooper, OEO director of health affairs, took responsibility, Hern said, but he said others told him orders came from the White House to delay distribution until after the 1972 election.

His efforts to learn the origin of the White House orders were met with hostility, harassment, attempts at intimidation and pointed invitations to resign," Hern reported. He finally resigned the following June.

Former acting OEO director Howard Phillips, appearing as a surprise witness, said the White House role was simply a matter of basically disapproving use of federal funds for abortion or sterilization surgery.

Neither he nor apparently anyone in the White House knew that sterilizations were already being performed, such as the publicized ones on the two Alabama girls, Phillip stated.

My impression was that the White House position reflected the view of the President that federal funds should not be used at all for sterilization or abortion rather than concern for any particular guidelines," Phillips said. The President had strong views on whether or not the federal government should have the power to exert control over life and death questions," he said.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Sjaun Eugene Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Woods of Berkeley, had a royal time during his first birthday party held on Saturday, June 16 at the Rose Garden Park on the Berkeley campus. His mother, the former Michele Francis, planned a wonderful outdoor party for her son and many children and their parents.

The guests enjoyed grilled hot dogs, crisp sandwiches, punch, relishes and chips. Due to weather conditions, cake and individual ice cream scoops in the shapes of clowns were served in the parent's apartment building.

The children played games and enjoyed "Mother Goose," who read stories and presented each child with a gift.

Among the guest were Mrs. James C. Ross and her children, Stephen and Shana of Seaside, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Robinson and their son Keith of Seaside, his godparents CSM (Ret) and Mrs. Wilbert Hopkins, also of Seaside. His maternal grandmother, Mrs. M.E. Harris of Seaside was on hand and was as thrilled as Sjaun's parents to watch her only grandchild enjoy his friends and the opening of his many gifts.

AWARDS

Monterey Peninsula residents were very pleased to have heard that Seaside's own Marshella DeVan, daughter of Mrs. Martha Dimery won first place in an oratorial contest sponsored by the Elks Pacific States Association, which was held during their convention in San Bernardino on Saturday, June 23. Miss DeVan is a fifteen year old student, who recently graduated from King Junior High School in Seaside.

This talented young lady was awarded a trophy and a $1000 scholarship for reciting "Martin Luther King's Dream." Parts of this same speech won her first runner up in the Miss Black Teenager of Monterey County, following Joanne Ford winning the state title. Her well earned efforts were rewarding, due to the stiff competition and various age groups in San Bernardino. Speeches were from five to ten minutes.

Also awarded third place in the queen contest for Mis PAS was Barbara White, daughter of Mrs. Y. White of Monterey. In this group participants were judged on poise and talent. Barbara recited a poem written by Mrs. Henry H. Hutchins. There is still a lot of controversy over her great performance. Barbara, a '73 graduate of Monterey High School, was also presented as a debutant during the Monterey Peninsula Cotillion League's ball in April. It was there that she was awarded a trophy immediately following her being titled "Miss Congeniality."

GRADUATION PARTY

Mr. Theron J. Polite of Seaside, hosted an elaborate graduation party in his lovely home on Saturday evening, June 16. Approximately seventy five guests attended and enjoyed a complete evening of entertainment.

Polite, a retired sergeant from the United States Army, is presently a deputy sheriff for the County of Monterey. He serves as a bailiff in the Honorable Judge Leach court.

He has been attending night school for the past few years, which earned him an AS degree in criminology. Polite plans to further his education in his major. His goal is to receive a BS degree.

Among the guests who consisted of co-workers and friends, came with gifts for the graduate, were Honorable Judge and Mrs. Edmund J. Leach, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nishida, Mr. and Mrs. Al O'Day, Deputy and Mrs. A.D. Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rianda, Mr. and Mrs. N.G. Cacciotti, Mrs. Pearl Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Sal J. Nicita, Dr. and Mrs. E. Brandon, CSM and Mrs. Wilbert Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Rodriguez, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hinton and many, many more.

Preparing a variety of delicious foods was Mr. Ada Hooks of Seaside. Hostesses during the evening were Miss Betty Sapp and Mrs. Frank Washington, both of Seaside.

Polite, with his very busy schedule, still participates in many community activities and organizations.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mr. Westley (Shaft) Conners of Seaside, celebrated his birthday party at the Fireside on Tuesday evening, June 26. Wall to wall guests attended and enjoyed the hospitality of their host. There was plenty of food and drink for the many guests.

Mr. Conners entertained his guest by doing a very impressive skit. Music provided was excellent and kept the guests on their feet. Greta Dansby brought the house down when singing several numbers.

Conners received many gifts from his well wishers. Several out of town guests attended. Mr. Paul Carter, formally of Seaside, now living in Fresno, was also present to help his fellow lodge brother celebrate his "39th" birthday.

Pilot Program Starts For Women, Infants, Children

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced the start of a new pilot Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

The WIC Program, authorized by Public Law 92-433, will be administered by USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

FNS will provide cash grants to Health Departments or comparable state agencies to make supplemental foods available to pregnant and lactating women, infants, and children up to 4 years. The system of delivery may include the distribution of food at health clinics, the issuance of food vouchers redeemable at retail stores, or any other method a state may select.

The pilot program will operate through June 30, 1974, in selected areas. It may be carried out in any area, without regard to whether the area is operating a Food Stamp Program or a Food Distribution Program.

Project areas will be required to maintain medical records on participants, and the information will be used to evaluate the effect of the supplemental food on the women, infants, and children who take part.

A local agency may apply for the program if:

*It provides health services to residents of areas in which a substantial number of persons have low incomes, *It serves women, infants, and children.

*Its staff includes competent medical personnel to examine persons receiving health services, and

*Its facilities include equipment for conducting evaluation tests.

Participants are eligible for the pilot program if:

*They live in an approved project area,

*They are eligible for medical treatment at reduced cost from a local agency serving the project area in which they live, and

*They are determined by competent medical personnel of the local agency serving the project area in which they live, and

*They are determined by competent medical personnel of the local agency to be in need of supplemental food.

The following foods will be authorized for distribution:

*To infants -- Iron-fortified infant formula, infant cereal, whole milk, and fruit juice.

*To children -- Milk, cheese, cereal, fruit or vegetable juice, and eggs.

*To pregnant or lactating women -- Milk, cheese, cereal, fruit or vegetable juice, and eggs.

The five Regional Offices of the Food and Nutrition Service will immediately start to contact State Health Departments, to advise them of operating details of the new program, and to determine their interest in participating in it.
